

The Paradigm Report

The One People's Public Trust 1776 - Initial Investigation.

The 'Paradigm Report' came about as a result of many years of research and investigation into the globalized practice of using private money (the labor money for the world's citizens, collected through taxes, bank fees, fines and a multitude of other methods) to fund the growth of the global banking system that is controlled by a handful of transnational elite families and groups. In essence, the reverse of 'Robin Hood'.

The investigation was carried out over two years by a small group of international banking attorneys who discovered some anomalies within the mortgage industry and began to look into the history, practices and consequences of the fraud, not just locally, but globally and the impact this unchecked activity had wrought on all people on earth.

The results of the investigation were clear, conclusive and in fact, frightening. The global judicial system is corrupt, supported and encouraged by the private banking system; and the global 'law enforcement' system has developed the habit of turning a 'blind eye' to the actions of corporate criminals due to the lack of clear direction, proper 'orders' and relevant support.

"Really we were asking can the private system be saved? Is it worth saving? And the answer is no, it could not be saved. And why put energy into something that cannot be saved?"

- Heather Ann Tucci-Jarraf, on how the Paradigm Report came to be.
